Heart Failure

Of the many deaths from heart failure very few realize in advance the seriousness of their condition. When the heart shows a weakness, such as palpitation, short breath, pain in chest and in side, it needs attention just as much as other organs do when they fail to do their work well. For any condition of heart trouble you can rely on

Death of Mrs. Shields.

Mrs. Alexander Shields, formerly Jean Calderwood, was born in Fenwick. Scotland, Feb. 3, 1818, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. W. Mc-Lam, in Ryegate, June 15. We say "another old friend gone!" and forget that she was ever anything but an aged grandmother. But between the two dates given what a long day's journey has been taken, "many miles, many miles," as she several times said during her last illness. Mrs. Shields was a descendant of David Calderwood, a Scotch historian of the 17th century, and of John Howie of Lochgoin, the author of "The Scots Worthies." From her Scotch ancestry she inherited many gifts. Prominent among these were humility and usefulness, which characterized her whole life. Her first long journey was to cross the ocean to America, when she was five years of age, when it took months of discomfort to make the journey. West Galway, N. Y., the morning of her was spent in active, willing, helpfulness in the family where there were seven brothers and two sisters, besides the parents to be helped. From the good mother she learned to sew and spin and weave in the long afternoons after the housework was done, and from the old tailor in the village she learned tailoring. All these accomplishments were of great service to her later on in The week's work was finished early on Saturday, that preparations might be made for the Sabbath, and early on Sabbath morning the walk of 12 miles to the church at Duanesburg was often taken, although sometimes services were held nearer home. Early in life she united with the Covenanter church and was a lifelong, consistent and intelligent member of it. June 9, 1847, she was married to Alexander Shields and went to his home in Glover. Here 24 happy years were spent and here their four children were born. Of this time, the prime of her life, it might have been said of her, "She girdeth her loins with strength and strengtheneth her arms,' She looketh well to the ways of her household and eateth not the bread of idleness. She stretcheth out her hand to the poor and reacheth forth her hands to the needy." She took the orphan into her home and fed and clothed him and gave of her own clothing to the widow and suffering. Her household were clothed with garments of her spinning and weaving and she waited on the sick. This work was kept up when the home was changed to Peacham in 1871. And thus the mid-day of life was spent, She loved the House of God and was a constant attendant there even in old age. She loved His day and His word. She loved the early morning of the days, the sunrise and the sunsets, and the beauty of nature. Twenty-four years ago her husband entered into rest. Five years ago her only son, David, went Home, and the long afternoon of her life has been filled with both sunshine and shadow. She is survived by her three daughters, Jennie, Mrs. A. W. McLam, Agnes, and Christina, Mrs. J. C. Morri-son and nine grandchildren. In the evening of the day she rested and waited for the call to go up higher but she was always busily engaged in sewing or reading or helping others. The loneliness of her last years was greatly lessened by many nieces and nephews and others who visited her and cheered her when

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials, Address: F. J.
